

Some generalisations about managing your own professional development

1. Work provides a lot more opportunities to develop than are taken.

My views:

2. Too few incentives exist to encourage learning.

My views:

3. We tend not to truly manage our own development and learning.

My views:

4. More can be learned from negative experiences than positive.

My views:

5. Most learning has a 'shelf life' and requires regular updating.

My views:

6. Learning is a skilled process that few of us have mastered.

My views:

7. Learning means much more than acquiring knowledge.

My views:

8. We all have development needs.

My views:

9. We all have specific barriers that get in the way of our learning and development.

My views:

